How Do I Share My Gifts & Talents?

Our agencies, both domestically and internationally, seek individuals with skills in medicine, language, law, or education.

Those who bring these special gifts to JVC provide their agencies with much-needed, invaluable resources.

Opportunities for Spanish Speakers

In every field, there are opportunities to speak Spanish. Some positions, both internationally and domestically, require fluency. Others seek people with basic Spanish proficiency.

Positions in Health Care

Clinics and social service centers appreciate JVs who have nursing degrees or experience in medical care. JVs work to address physical and mental health issues with refugees, children, the underinsured, mothers-to-be, those who are homeless, and others in need.

Teaching and Education

There are many education-related positions in JVC, both domestically and internationally, as education is a field with so much need in our world. There are agencies that need certified teachers to work with children and students, and even more agencies that need individuals who have studied in the field of education. Almost every city has a teaching position.

Law-Related Work

Legal positions in JVC agencies are growing in need. Though many simply require a passion for law, others would benefit greatly from a JV with a law degree.

Issues such as immigration, prison ministry, or services to people who are incarcerated, are addressed through law-related positions in several areas of the country.

Every Special Talent Welcomed!

Agencies in JVC need you and all of your gifts and talents. Many of our positions will allow you room to grow. You can bring your skills for technology, art education, dance, theater, or music, or your gift to write poems, research, or organize. Every special talent will be welcomed! Some JVs might find ways to bring those gifts to their local neighborhood or communities. The possibilities are out there, so come, share, and enjoy!
