

JESUIT VOLUNTEER CORPS

DARE TO CHANGE

CAMPUS COLLABORATION WITH JVC STAFF

Based in four core values—spirituality, simple living, community, and social justice—the Jesuit Volunteer Corps offers young women and men an opportunity to put their faith into action by working full-time for justice and peace.

For decades, JVC has aspired to create a more just and hopeful world in collaboration with Jesuits, agency partners, and institutions of higher education. As an organization, JVC seeks to support and further conversations around spirituality, simple living, community and social justice on-campus. Whether these partnerships involve retreat co-facilitation, resource sharing for alternative spring break trips, workshops on intentional living in campus housing, or participating in local advocacy for marginalized populations, JVC staff are committed to the university and collegiate departments that drive this work.

Staff members available for campus collaboration

Kevin Breen – Recruitment Manager

Kevin (kbreen@jesuitvolunteers.org) served as a Jesuit Volunteer through JVC Northwest in Yakima, Washington. There, he worked with low-income, farmworker families living in affordable housing. Kevin is a graduate of Loyola University Maryland, and spent the Spring of 2013 in El Salvador through la Casa de la Solidaridad. Having worked as a Program Coordinator for the cities of Boston, Bridgeport, Syracuse, and Scranton, Kevin now brings his passions for communication, Spanish, and group facilitation to our campus partners. Some university collaborations that excite Kevin include:

- Departments of Outdoor Education and their intersection with simple living
- Spanish and language proficiencies as an avenue to social justice work
- Alternative Spring Break trip planning and coordination with current JV communities

Cassie Clemente – Chief of Staff

Cassie (cclemente@jesuitvolunteers.org) served as a Jesuit Volunteer in Milwaukee, working in two Catholic grade schools. She was able to incorporate a lifelong love of sports into her role as physical education teacher, and her dynamic role prepared her to wear many different hats in future positions. Before returning to work for JVC almost 5 years ago, Cassie spent several years working for the Cal Ripken Sr. Foundation, which offers opportunities for at-risk youth to build community and skills through baseball. Cassie was on the basketball team at St. Mary's College of Maryland, and she draws many parallels from her time on a team to community as it is found in JVC. Cassie is finishing an MBA program at Loyola University Maryland while working fulltime at JVC, and enjoys sharing a nonprofit perspective in discussions with classmates. Some areas Cassie hopes to collaborate on include:

- Community building and retreat facilitation
- Intersections between Ignatian spirituality and business ethics
- Catholic spirituality and student reflection
- Athletics and service, leadership through faith

Tim Shriver – President

Tim has led the Jesuit Volunteer Corps since October 2015, and previously acted as the Chief Dream Director at The Future Project in San Francisco. Tim held leadership positions at The Future Project since 2012, and was one of the organization's earliest employees. He spearheaded the development of The Future Project's transformative school programs, which now inspire students to identify and achieve their dreams at over 50 schools in seven cities. Tim co-founded the "Spread the Word to End the Word" campaign while a student at Yale University, and his path has been defined by a firm belief in faith that does justice. Some areas where Tim finds passion include:

- Leadership among young believers in the 21st century
- Connection between institutions that promote the societal deepening of Jesuit values
- Promotion of authentic community and its spiritual roots

If you have any questions about the Jesuit Volunteer Corps' opportunities, please visit jesuitvolunteers.org or contact Kevin by emailing kbreen@jesuitvolunteers.org